Poor Paint is Expensive

If one is rich enough to repaint his buildings every year for the pleasure of having a change of color scheme, the quality of the paint used may cut little figure. But if it is desirable to cut the painting bills down to the least amount possible per year, it is of the utmost importance that the paint be made of and the best of Linseed Oil. There are imitations in the form of alleged White Lead, and there are substitutes in the form of ready-prepared paints.

We guarantee this White Lead to be absolutely pure, and the Dutch Boy on the side of every keg is your safeguard. Look for him.

Daisy, the little Brown Mare.

The little brown mare comes over the hill
When the snows are drifted high,
And though floods arise, she must get there
She must swim or learn to fly.

For the mails must come, and the mails must
And the little brown mare has no time to be slow.

Beautifully hurries by,
The little brown mare boasts no pedigree,
But daily, through storm and shine,
Undertakes, faithful, she brings to me
Glad tidings from friends of mine,
She brings us tidings of food or ill,
Street, doors of love, or a drumming hill,
Newspapers and valentines.

Then here's three cheers for the little brown mare.
Who never has questioned why?
She's a good girl for others, that burdens bear,
More patient than you and I,
Three cheers for her master whose watchful eye is constant, unceasing, dark days or fair, As the days and the years roll by.

— CORA M. W. GREENLEAF.

Written for the Advertiser.
Prize Numerical Enigma.

The whole, composed of 30 letters, is a quotation from James Russell Lowell.

1. 19, 3, 25, 5, 10, is to help, to succor.
2. 1, 27, 6, is to cut, to parse out.
3. 17, 11, 26, 9, is spoil, plunder.
4. 29, 22, 21, 25, is taste, savor.
5. 20, 25, is a green liquid.
6. 18, 1, 13, 29, 27, is to hate, to loathe.
7. 30, 24, 22, is to open, to reveal.
8. 22, 15, 30, 35, is to pierce, to purloin.

The quotation consists of 12 words and so clearly are the key-words defined that it cannot be a hard task to find it.

Send the answer to PUZZLER, Box 55,
West Bethel, Maine, and enclose a two-cent stamp.

To every fifth solver I will send a book costing from ten cents to one dollar.

The answer to the May enigma is:

Boys and Girls of To-day.

The greater advantages and opportunities the young men of to-day have over those of 50 years or more ago are apparent.

Take the matter of education.
The majority then could only attend school in the winter months and many had to go long distances. The teachers in the rural districts were often selected for their physical prowess rather than for their scholarly attainments, and the text books were very inferior to those now in use. Graded schools were few, and the writer well remembers a Greenleaf's athletic, thumbed about half way through, as each term a start was made at the beginning and the back part of the book was never reached.

In studying at home the student either sat in the chimney corner and read by the firelight or by a tallow candle which barely sufficed to "make darkness visible."

Later the sperm oil lamp came into use, the wick having to be pried up with a pin, and which gave little, if any, better light than the tallow dip.

Nowadays graded schools are the rule and pupils living at a distance are transported to and from school at the public expense. The teachers are college graduates, or graduates from the Normal schools, the text books are beautifully printed and finely illustrated and the school equipments are in keeping. X-ray equipment furnishes an excellent light for evening reading, and many even of the smaller places have gas or electricity or both.

A college education is now within the reach of every boy of average intellect and ambition. The free high schools fill the boys and girls for college, and hundreds of Maine boys have worked their way through college by teaching part of the year or availing themselves of the many other employments open to them.

In the 50's, and before, the young man had, generally speaking, to either follow the sea or the plow. Many of our Maine boys chose the former calling and won world-wide distinction as master mariners.

Farming was then a more arduous and less remunerative calling than it is to-day. The farmer and his family had to produce, in addition to the necessary food, many articles of domestic use which they buy to-day at a reasonable price. Many had to go long distances to market or to the grist mill.

To-day they have a market at their doors for what they have to sell, the goods they buy are delivered to them, the telephone puts them in touch with neighbors and the town, the R. F. D. carries their mail, and the Grange furnishes social enjoyment and mental stimulus. In the early days the boy worked on the farm until he was 21 without pay. If employment was found in a store the pay was only 3 or 4 dollars a week. Lumbering, working in a mill or driving a team were about the only other occupations open to a young man.

How different the conditions to-day.
With a college education readily available the professions of law, medicine and engineering are open to every boy.
New fields of usefulness and profit are awaiting them. The electrical business has already offered many Maine boys remunerative positions and its rapid development is constantly demanding more.

Railroad building calls for surveying and constructing engineers. The vanishing forests have brought out a new profession—that of forestry. The national government is giving employment with good pay, to many young men in this line, and all cities which have parks are employing foresters that the shade trees may have expert care.

The telephone companies employ a large number of young men in various capacities, and in all these comparatively new employments there is promotion for those who merit it.

When the introduction of labor-saving machinery began it was feared that it would deprive many of employment.
Labor-saving devices the more employment and at increased pay. It is difficult to see how we could manage in the factories, on the farms or in the homes, without the many labor-saving devices which we now get along without the many other labor-saving machines and implements. Thus the young man of to-day, in comforts and conveniences, and in opportunities for advancement in professional and other callings, has great advantages over the boys of fifty or more years ago.

The girls of to-day also have greater opportunities and advantages. Indeed we are not sure but that the changes of the past fifty years have been even more in their favor. Their field of usefulness was then closely restricted, whereas today they are enabled to compete in many callings on equal terms with the young men. The doors of the men's colleges are open to them and colleges have been established for their exclusive benefit.

Women to-day are occupying, pupils not open to them fifty years ago.
Hundreds are finding profitable employment as trained nurses, thousands as bookkeepers, stenographers, type writers and cashiers. They are also found in increasing numbers in telephone and telegraph offices and in many responsible business positions. Fortunate indeed, are the boys and girls of to-day.

Memorial Day Exercises and Address Well Attended. Excellent Address by Former Norway Boy.

In the forenoon the Grand Army men and the women of the Relief Corps, led by the Norway Cadet Band, marched to Rustfield cemetery where a short service was given by Rev. E. S. Cotton of the Baptist church. After the decoration of the graves of comrades they formed in line again and proceeded to Pine Grove where Lincoln's address was read by Rev. Bates S. Rideout of the Congregational church. After the services and decoration here they marched to Grand Army hall where a bountiful dinner was served.

A little after 1 o'clock they proceeded to the Opera House. There were about 20 Grand Army men and about the same number of ladies of the Relief Corps.

A little before 2 o'clock the exercises began with singing by the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th grades in charge of Eva McArde, with Earle Thibodeau at the piano. The several selections given by the children were excellent and showed much careful training by Miss McArde.

Prayer was offered by Rev. E. S. Cotton, followed by a second selection by the children, then a well rendered reading by Ida M. Tibbets and another selection by the children.

Columbus Richardson then introduced the speaker of the day, Prof. Verne M. Whitman, a former Norway boy, son of Judge Charles F. Whitman and now principal of the Peterboro, N. H., high school.

Prof. Whitman said that Memorial day represented the full blown blossom of a people's gratitude. It would be impossible for him to take the soldiers back to the days of the Rebellion as that was a time that he could not himself remember but he was well impressed with the great significance of the day which we were observing. He was glad to be recognized as one of Norway's sons and it gave him great pleasure to bring to Harry Rust Post the fraternal greeting of the organization at Peterboro of which he is an honorary member.

This is the day of days to the soldiers all over our broad land and the graves of those who died defending the country will all be remembered and decorated to-day.

Prof. Whitman worked up his subject in a very pleasing and interesting manner portraying the leaving of the soldiers from their homes, the drilling and marching. The veteran lives it all over again in memory to-day. But there are memories besides those of hardships. Those of friendships formed, sacrifices made and valorous deeds performed are most dear to the heart of every veteran.

4000 Union soldiers lost their lives in the war of the Rebellion. Many of these were the sons of Maine and credit is due the soldiers of Maine for their services. They will ever be held in loving remembrance by a government "of the people, by the people and for the people." The speaker then took up the evolution of matters. Four and a half centuries ago this country was a vast wilderness peopled only by natives. To-day this American republic holds a position great and commanding. The time is fast approaching when prices will be fixed at New York instead of London. We have the greatest institutions.

In the 17th century two permanent colonies were formed, one at Plymouth, Mass., the other at Jamestown, Va. The founding of these two colonies was described to some extent, gradually working up to the great Civil war, the greatest war of modern times. The destiny of a nation had fashioned a man for this great struggle, Abraham Lincoln of Illinois. He pictured the women and the suffering they endured. This was not a strife in which a foreign country fought but it was brother against brother.

He told of the great work of the 1st Maine cavalry, which helped to win the day in many fierce struggles. The work of the navy was great and not to be forgotten.

Norway's share was dealt with at considerable length. Norway was the first to offer men from this section of the state. First company was formed, the Spoke of Harry Rust Post, the work of Captain William W. Whitmarsh, Jonathan Blake, Wellington Hobbs and other men of Norway, who figured in the strife. In all 240 men went from Norway. Amos F. Noyes was the oldest man who went. Co. F of the 17th Maine saw service when bullets fell like hail. The 10th Maine of Norway in which Gen. Beal figured and Henry R. Millet was at the head of Norway company did superior service.

The address showed much careful preparation and thorough understanding of the subject. The house was well filled and the members of the Grand Army and Relief Corps, as well as the other who were present, were much pleased with this excellent address.

Everybody Goes to See Price Webber.

The Boston Comedy Co., H. Price Webber, manager, played, Thursday evening, at Opera House to fully 600 people. The play presented was "Western Life." Mr. and Mrs. Webber taking the leading parts. At the close of the third act Mr. Webber thanked the people for their attendance saying that he had much to thank the Norway people for. There was a time when but for them he might not have kept his show together.

Something that Norway people will always remember is the time after the big fire of '94 when Price played here turning the proceeds to help the town.

About 30 years has this show been coming here. Everybody knows Mr. Webber and all go to see his show.

Not So Dead as She Looked.

The Bridgton News is responsible for the following: "An amusing incident in connection with the visit of the Norway Masons is told by a resident of Water Street. Several of the visitors came to Bridgton in automobiles. As they were nearing the village, a couple of machines apparently stuck at one side of the road, first to finish the run. Near the corner of Water and Kennard streets they ran into a flock of hens. One of the pullets became mixed with the gear, and after going around the wheel a few times, was finally thrown out at one side of the road, where she lay with feet pointing toward the sky, apparently a dead hen.

The automobilists, as soon as they could conveniently, stopped their machines, turned around and came back to see how much damage they had done.

"I guess we have a hen to pay for somewhere around here," said one of them.

"There she lies," said the owner, as she pointed to the prostrate bird.

"Here's fifty cents," said one of them

MOTHERHOOD

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, cures all displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.

Notwithstanding Mrs. James Chester of 427 W. 35th St., New York says in this interesting letter: "I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it, and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women. It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free.

and the motorists turned around and drove away.

No sooner was the machine out of sight when the hen heaved a sigh of relief, opened one eye to see if there were any more cyclists coming, her way, slowly arose, shook the various kinks out of her person and with a squawk that put an automobile horn to shame started for the barn as though pursued by a thousand devils.

Down on Water street there is either a hen or a fifty cent piece that belongs to this same autoist. He may have either by proving property.

This is the same motorist who recently hitched his machine with a hitch-weight.

Memorial Day was observed in a manner befitting the occasion. The parade formed in the school grounds at 10 a. m. and headed by the High School band, followed by the veterans in line and in carriages, and seventy-five school children marched to Oxford cemetery, where with appropriate ceremonies the graves of the boys in blue were decorated. The line of march was then taken up to the High Street cemetery, where a similar service was performed. The parade then marched to Robinson hall, where a bountiful dinner was served to all who were hungry. After dinner cigars were enjoyed and old times talked over. At 1 p. m. the line was re-formed and marched to the Congregational church, where a most excellent oration was delivered by Rev. J. H. Little, pastor of the Universalist church at South Paris. Buildings were lavishly decorated with the flag we love so well, the Stars and Stripes, and all places of business were closed during the afternoon. Cyrus T. Wardwell was marshal of the day, while John W. Chadbourne was commander of the Post.

Pleasant Memories.

E. M. and W. M. Greenleaf and son, Harry, of Auburn visited their brother, P. C. Greenleaf, last week. On Thursday they went on a fishing trip to College Swamp, a favorite resort of their younger days. As the noon hour came they thought they were having "fishermen's luck" and that the fish were not as hungry as they were, so they took their lunch boxes and slowly ascended the hill down which in boyhood days they enjoyed rolling the large, yellow pumpkins in harvest time and sliding in winter. While eating dinner on the hill overlooking their childhood's home, many anecdotes of early days were told, making it a very pleasant day for them. If asked how many fish they caught they would tell you. They did not by any means return to the city with empty baskets.
